Rabbit as a New Food

The rabbit is coming into his own. From a despised pest he is rising rapidly to the dignity of a popular food. He is already receiving consideration in many quarters Australia has converted this farm pest into food and today frozen rabbits take third place in her exports. Housekeepers have discovered, too, the value of the adaptable rabbit which can be roasted, fried, stewed, potted, or turned into a pie. Indeed, it can be used in as many forms as chicken. Here is a recipe for rabbit sausage received from Oklahoma by the Missouri Division of the United States Food Administration:

Take healthy rabbits, young or old, dress and soak over night in salt water. Wash thoroughly. Cut the meat off the bone and grind very fine in food chopper. To one pound of meat use 1/2 of a medium sized onion, 2 tablespoons cracker crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon of salt, 1/2 teaspoon of black pepper, pinch of cayenne pepper and 1/2 cup of milk. Chop onion fine with knife. Mix all ingredient thoroughly, let stand for several hours, make into cakes and fry or pan-broil.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children, of all ages and for grown-ups.

Use Sorghum Instead Of Sugar For Meat Cure

Folks who like sugar cured meat may save sugar and develop a sugar cure flavor by using sorghum. This is a suggestion made by P. F. Trowbridge of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Plain salt or salt and pepper may be used in curing the meat. After the meat is smoked the sugar cure flavor may be developed by smearing the meat thoroly with sorghum. Wrap the meat and hang it where the mice can not reach it. The pepper may be omitted from the cure and applied with the sorghum.

Out Without a Scratch

Clarence J. Strub, the jolly clerk at Bowen's Drug and Jewelry Store considers himself about the luckiest fellow in town this week, and he has right good reason for his self congratulation. "Strubie" was a passenger on Wabash passenger train No. 3 Monday afternoon, returning from a business trip to Jefferson City, when five cars of the train jumped the track and rolled into a ditch near Thompson, Mo., a short distance this side of Mexico. When the car in which he was riding left the rails and turned over he was tumbled about with the rest of the passengers, but as soon as he could pick himself up out of the tangle he spied an opening and in a jiffy had scrambled out of the wreck. Clarence didn't get even a scratch, but he got a round of excitement entirely different from the kind a fellow gets at the movies, and when he rides trains hereafter he will keep one eye out of the window for bad track. We join his many friends in congratulating him upon his lucky escape.

—Brunswick.

Navy Shake Up

Great Britain will revolutionize control of her navy by putting at the head of the various departments officers who have proven ability. The management will be in the hands of a general staff with three general divisions, one division to handle home waters, another to look after overseas interests and the other to govern trade relationships etc.

It would appear reasonable that all such control everywhere should be in hands of men fully acquainted with such work, not in the hands of civilians who are offspring of political preferment.

Dangers of a Cold

Do you know that of all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the colds themselves that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that they so often lead to. For that reason every cold should be gotten rid of with the least possible delay. To accomplish this you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy of great help to you. It loosens a cold, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration and enables the system to throw off the cold. For sale by all dealers.
